A SHORT CALENDAR OF THE DEEDS RELATING TO NORWICH.

A SHORT CALENDAR

OF THE

Deeds relating to Norwich

ENROLLED IN THE COURT ROLLS OF THAT CITY,

1285–1306.

EDITED BY

WALTER RYE.

Norwich:

PRINTED FOR THE NORFOLK AND NORWICH ARCHÆOLOGICAL SOCIETY
BY AGAS H. GOOSE, RAMPANT HORSE STREET.

1903.

PREFACE.

THE laborious work of compiling a volume like the present is well rewarded by the numerous discoveries which the compiler makes as his task progresses.

To find a Norwich bell founder, "campanarius," in 1290, p. 34—nearly a century before the earliest chronicled by such a specialist as the late John L'Estrange—and five surgeons, apothecaries, and medical men (pp. 5, 27, 67, 72, and 94), whose very names were unknown to Mr. C. Williams, our local medical antiquary,[1] was satisfactory enough, but who knows what unwritten art history may not be in the entries relating to Roger le Peyntur in 1289-90, p. 29. Robert le Peyntor on p. 106 was probably the Robert de Mendlesham whose son John occurs as "pictor" on p. 91, and Peter Pictor, p. 1.[2]

The growth of the woad industry here finds much illustration in the following pages. The agreement between the six foreign merchants and the Norwich bailiffs as to woad is referred to elsewhere by the Rev. W. Hudson (Norf. Arch., vol. xii., p. 64), but attention

[1] Some were mentioned in a paper by Dr. Beverley, read at a meeting of the Eastern Counties' Medical Association, at their visit to Norwich.

[2] See also a paper by Mr. G. E. Fox, F.S.A., read before the Archæological Institute, at their Norfolk meeting, in 1889 (Archæological Journal, vol. xlvii. pp. 65—77).

is drawn to the numerous entries as to the Norwich "Weyders"—Peter Pyremund, Thorald de Cawston, John Havekyn, and John Chiresy—to be found on pp. 14, 46, 55, 72, &c.

One good thing an index does is to incidentally disclose new facts. That the existing lists of the early clergy are very faulty is well known, but it is suggestive to note that in this short Calendar the names of no less than sixteen rectors and vicars occur, who were unknown to Blomefield, viz.:—

Page 8. William, son of Thomas, formerly rector of Carlton Forehoe.
" 12. Geoffrey de Dunwich, rector of the mediety of St. Andrew of Beeston.
" 15. Ranulph Pikot, rector of St. Michael of Conisford.
" 28. Edmund de Cokefeld, rector of Birston.
" 30. Rich. de Griston, rector of N. Birling.
" 32. Robt. de Cornevyll, rector of Intwood.
" 39. Henry, "rector parson" of Bawsey, on p. 94 described as Henry de Sempringham.
" 41. Robert de Necton, parson of [Colti]sale, or [Tivete]sale.
" " Roger, vicar of Bekley.
" 65. John de Ingham, parson of Ingham.
" 71. John de Martham, rector of Guneby.[1]
" 72. William, vicar of Hanworth.
" 80. Wm. [de Norwich], rector of All Saints, Melton.
" 90. William de Berry, parson of Filby.

[1] This would seem to be a village, now lost, on the sea coast. Guneby Gate is mentioned in Blomefield, vol. viii., p. 71; or it may be Gunby in Lincolnshire.

„ 98. Thos. de Glanvyle, rector of St. Botulph.
„ „ Herman de Beccles, vicar of Narford.
„ 99. Robt. de Elmham, rector of Knapton.
„ 106. Wm. de Horsford, rector of St. Michael Coslany.
„ 109. Henry, parson of Bawsey.
„ 110. Simon, parson of St. Mary, Ilketshall.
„ 115. Wm. de Hersford, rector of St. Michael Coslany.
„ 116. Jno. Nicholas, rector of St. Helen.
„ „ Alan, rector of St. Mary, Shottesham.

Of course it by no means follows that all the "clerks" mentioned in the Calendar were ecclesiastics, so the fact that many of them are described as married men and fathers of families, is not conclusive to show that priests commonly married at this period.

Two of these "clerks" were certainly not parsons, for they are described as "John, clericus, le mercer" (p. 43); and we see (p. 40) Adam de Stirston, a "clericus," described as a citizen.

On the other hand, Thomas, the Rector of Carlton Forehoe, had children by Kate de Wymondham before 1286. See p. 8.

It is very noteworthy to see that in many cases the wives retained their own surnames after marriage here, just as they do now in France and Scotland, e.g.:—

Page 3. Geoffrey de Eston and Matilda Guraunt his wife [on p. 63 Gurwan].
„ 4. Wm. Salman and Alice de Ling his wife.
„ 16. Ralph de Heigham and Matilda Chyte his wife.
„ 17. Wm. de Devenschyre and Alice de Weeting his wife.

" 48. Alex. de Sternefeld and Johanna de Horning his wife.
" 49 & 56. John de Ashwell and Matilda de Bergh his wife.
" 51. Geoffrey le Tyweler and Helewise Roneman his wife.
" 52. Wm. de Catton and Alice Tingel his wife.
" 57. Geoffrey de Worstead and Margt. de Quidenham his wife.
" " Wm. Bilhard and Matilda de Wacton his wife.
" 63. John de Lodebrok and Isabella de Ayleward.
" 82. Reyner de Howe, smith, and Margaret Qwytheved his wife.
" 87. Roger de Hupton and Emma Knot his wife.
" 92. John de Badingham and Alice Chilleman his wife.
" 93. John Brid and Margery de Blafeld.

It is interesting to note the early occurrence of foreigners from Norway (9), Tuscany (11), Bruges (49), and Paris (22); while Costinoble (p. 46) may be from Constantinople. New comers from Wales, Scotland, and Flanders are to be found in le Waleys (p. 31), Walscheman (p. 53), le Escot (p. 9), Scot (p. 53), and le Flemengg (p. 49). Other foreigners were certainly Yizhannus de Hethersett (p. 11) and Nessabenus de Rugham, and Brabant occurs on p. 99, Gascony on p. 103. Immigrants from other English towns and cities occur in the following order:—

The custom of enrolling the testaments of deceased persons, as dealing with citizens' "real" property (the moveable or personal property was dealt with by the Ordinary), seems to have become common in 1298. Those enrolled on the membranes now calendared are:—

Not many Norman or French names occur as those who owned property in the city; all I have noticed being:—

Of the knightly class who held property in the city in the reign of Edw. I., we find eight, viz.:—Sir Henry de Boyton (p. 6), Sir Peter Rocelin (p. 18), Sir Wm. de Whitwell (p. 25), Sir Thos. Bardolf of Spixworth (pp. 33, 58, and 75), Sir Thos. de Helhoughton (pp. 34, 51, and 70), Sir Adam de Burtoft (p. 43), Sir Edward Charels or Charles (p. 56), and Lady Isabella de Ingham (p. 106).

It is possible these may have been the first of the county gentry, who began the practice of having inns or hostelries in the city.

Of quaint or nicknames we find the usual small percentage, such as Fourloves, Fullflood, Holdbarlik, Blackberd, Pluckerose, Portellur, Stedefot, and Craketayl; but the very large majority were names of those called by their Christian names and the name of the village whence they came. The numerous trade names are dealt with by Mr. Hudson elsewhere. The almost entire absence of Jewish names is suggestive, and shows how thoroughly the banishment of 1290 was carried out.

[1] The occurrence of a Walter Tirel of Mannington in 1289, so many years after the Walter Tyrell of the same place, who shot William Rufus, is noteworthy.

The frequent occurrence of the name of Chaucer has a special interest, in view of the contention, now I think gaining ground, that the poet was of Norfolk origin; and the coincidence of the two Peter le Chaucers, one in 1288, here (p. 17), and the other of London (whence the poet's family certainly came), in 1268-9, is worthy of noting as a new fact.

So is the fact that the name of Chaumpaigne—the poet's connection with a lady of this name will be remembered—occurs in these rolls, and it will be very interesting to see if the later rolls of the period of Chaucer's own life will give any absolute proof in the matter.

The Danish names are fairly numerous, and of them may be noted Frost, Grimbald, Grym, Hakun, Thurkeld, Thurbern, Ubbyng, and Ulfketel.

Some Notes on the Enrolments and the Names of Trades and Occupations have been kindly contributed by the Rev. W. Hudson, F.S.A., who also compiled more than half the Calendar itself, viz., all rolls 1 and 2.

W. R.

THE ENROLMENTS.

A FEW remarks will explain the nature of the enrolments, which are here calendared only so far as regards the names of the contracting parties and the locality of the property which formed the subject of the grant.

When a piece of land or a house or shop or any other property was conveyed in the City of Norwich, the grantee, with a view to his own security, would generally have the deed of feoffment enrolled in the City Court. If he were an admitted "citizen," he had a right to claim this. But others were allowed to do it, for it is almost certain that a large number of the grantees were not admitted citizens. The original deed of feoffment, of which some hundreds exist in the City Muniment Room, differed somewhat in form from what was enrolled. It ran in the first person:—"Know all men, &c., that I, Bernard de Porynglond, have granted and given, &c." In that form it was brought into court and acknowledged by the grantor to the grantee in the presence of the Bailiffs of the City and a number of persons residing on or near the site of the property. They all witnessed it, their names being inscribed, and the parties set their seals to it. It was then indorsed by the Common Clerk and handed to the grantee.

This public transaction was of itself a strong security for some time to come. But the enrolment furnished a much stronger security. One of the chapters of the City Customs asserts that "such enrolments have the force of a Fine [final agreement] in the King's Court." That is, the statements there made and the conditions of conveyance and tenure acknowledged in it could not be traversed.

As a specimen of the simplest form of enrolment may be given, in English, the following (second entry on p. 2):—

"John Bernard of Poringlond and Agnes his wife came into the full court of Norwich on Friday, being the feast of St. Margaret the Virgin, in the 13th year of the reign of King Edward, son of King Henry, and acknowledged that he had granted, given and altogether quit-claimed for himself and his heirs to Andrew, son of Sir Andrew de Hengham, Knight, a messuage in Berstrete, which lies between the messuage of the said Sir Andrew towards the south and the churchyard of the church of St. Bartholomew towards the north, and abuts on the King's highway towards the west, and the land of the said Sir Andrew towards the east. And thereupon he delivered to the said Andrew his deed sealed with his seal, read and delivered in full court, and indorsed by the hand of John de Ely, clerk, &c."

This is not finished. It only wants the date of enrolment and the names of the attesting Bailiffs.

Though the names of the witnesses are not often enrolled, it is plain that the topographical details are most abundant. And besides the interest of the names of the parties and the local topography, there are many other details of great value. Very frequently the transaction is concerned with carrying out the will of a deceased citizen, or settling the claim of a widow to her reasonable dower; or it has arisen out of some disputed ownership or tenancy, about which a suit has been pleaded in the City Court. Through the evidence of such cases a great deal of interesting information may be gathered as to the customs prevailing in the city with regard to devise and inheritance of property, and many other details of city life in early times. It may be observed that the enrolment was not, in the modern sense, a registration of title. It was a legal record of an acknowledgment or, in legal language, a recognisance. It entitled the grantee, at any future time, to vouch (or call) to warrant the grantor if a third party set up a claim. He in turn might call his grantor. If the claim was substantiated against any grantor, the Court ordered him to find for his grantee some other property of equivalent value to that successfully claimed from him. This often happened in settling a widow's dower. The third entry on p. 28 relates to a very interesting and complicated arrangement of this sort.

Only very few of these matters of interest have found mention in this brief Calendar. Some special entries may be noticed. A deed relating to Leicester is sealed by the City seal by way of authentication (p. 3). An agreement between the Citizens and the Woad Merchants of Picardy is enrolled (p. 5). A series of documents, six years old, is allowed to be enrolled to bar a claim (p. 23). A list is given of the most important municipal archives in 1289 (p. 30). A very early apprenticeship indenture of 1290 is entered in full (p. 33). A youth of sixteen years, the age of maturity in the city, executes a conveyance (p. 52). A "butler" of King Henry III. held property in the city by gift of the king (p. 56). A charter of exemption from tolls and other dues is enrolled, granted by King Henry I. to the Monks of Valle Crucis (p. 73). A similar charter of exemption to the Monks of Sempringham, granted by King Henry III., is enrolled on Roll II. m. 41d. A Society of Florentine Merchants is authorized to buy counterfeit money current in the kingdom (p. 75). A list of fifteen leading citizens is given as associated with the four Bailiffs to receive, in the name of the whole community, the grant of a messuage. They may have been members of an annually appointed administrative Council, but were more probably only acting on that occasion (p. 89).

NAMES OF TRADES AND OCCUPATIONS.

N.B.—Nearly all the names are found in the enrolments in three forms, used indifferently according to the caprice of the writer. As the entries are in Latin, that may be called the normal form, as acuarius. But when a man was commonly known by the French form of his occupation, that might be used, as agulier; or the English form might be employed, as nedler. As a rule the French article le is prefixed to both the French and the English forms.

Acuarius, le agulier, le nedler, dealer in needles.

Agulyer. See Acuarius.

Alutarius, le cordewaner, cordewainer. A worker in Cordovan leather, dressed with alum; shoemaker.

Armurer, le. Armourer.

Baker, pistor, le pestur; also baxter.

Barber, le barbour, barbitonsor.

Barker, le. Tanner, who prepared leather with bark, especially of oak.

Batillarius, le botman, boatman.

Beileghemakere, le (p. 25). Perhaps bell maker, campanarius; often belleyetere, bell founder. But the first part of the word seems more like bellow, a maker of bellows.

Blekestere, le. Bleacher of cloth.

Brevetur, le. Perhaps a writer of briefs or letters.

Bukmongere, le (p. 20). "Buk" can hardly mean "book." It is used for buck, usually a he-goat. (See Wright-Wülcher Vocabularies, "buk").

Butcher. Lat. carnifex. The French term used in these rolls is le macecref. (Riley Liber Albus, "masecref").

Buteler, le, or botiller, butler. A keeper of butts of wine (Lib. Cust., Lond., 703). Lat. pincerna. Henry le Cunte (p. 56) who was "pincerna" of King Henry III. perhaps held the office for local collection of the King's prisage on wines, as the chamberlains of London and Sandwich (Liber Cust., Lond., 239 and 243 ; Hall History of Custom Revenue, vol ii. pp. 93, 96).

Bursere, le. Seller of purses.

Caligarius. Usually translated "hosier." They were, in Norwich, probably makers of leather gaiters (Kirkpatrick Streets and Lanes of Norwich, p. 26, n.). Though this Latin word is very common, "hosier" scarcely ever occurs in the early rolls. See Le Chaucer.

Campanarius. See Belleghemakere.

Candelar. Chandler.

Capellanus. See Chaplain.

Capellarius. See Le Chapeler.

Carectarius. Carter.

Carnifex. See Butcher.

Carpenter.

Cementarius. Fr. le maschun, mason.

Ceynturer, le. Lat. zonator, girdler.

Chaloner le. A maker of blankets, from Chalons in France.

Chapeler, le. Lat. capellarius, hatter.

Chaplain, capellanus. Clergy unattached to parishes.

Chapman. An itinerant dealer.

Chaucer, le. From Fr. chausse, a shoe or gaiter. Perhaps equivalent to "caligarius." They are found in the part of the market called "Caligaria" or "Calceria."

Chaundeler, le. See Candelar.

Cirer, le. Uncertain ; it may be from Fr. ciere, cera, wax ; cerarius, wax-chandler.

Cissor, tailor, le tailleur.

Clerk, clericus. Used of others besides ecclesiastics.

Clubbere, le. Perhaps a seller of clubs. Under the Assize of Arms every adult man was bound to be provided with at least a coutel or knife and a "baculus," a staff or club.

Cobelere, le ; sutor, shoemaker.

Coc, le. Sometimes le ku or le cu, cocus, cook.

Combere, le. A maker of bowls (Leicester Records, vol. ii. p. 142).

Combestere, le (?).

Coner, le (?).

Co-opertor. Coverlet maker.

Cordwaner, le. See Alutarius.

Cornuarius (p. 92). Dealer in horn.
Coteman. Cottager.
Coureur, le ; coriarius, currier.
Cu, le. See Le coc.
Culyur, le (?).
Cunte, le. Count, earl, a family name. See Le buteler.
Cupere, le, or le cuvere. Cooper, from Lat. cuva, a tub.
Cutelere, le. Cutler.
Cyrer, le. See Cirer.
Cyrotecarius, glover, le gaunter.
Cyssor. See Cissor.

Den, le. An ecclesiastical officer like a Rural Dean with powers of jurisdiction (p. 47). Hudson Leet Jurisdiction in Norwich, p. xci. A somewhat obscure civil official in country districts (p. 25). Jessopp and James St. William of Norwich, p. xxxvi.
Draper, le. Dealer in cloth.
Dyer, tinctor, le teyntur.

Especer, le, spicer. Dealer in small articles or spices (Lib. Alb., Lond., vol. iii. p. 315).
Exsmyth, le. Maker of axes. On pp. 51 and 116 "le ex . . ." is no doubt the same word defaced.

Fecherman le. Fisherman. On p. 105 used as a family name.
Feliper, le, or pheliparius, fripperer, or dealer in old clothes.
Ferun, le, or ferur, ferronarius or ferrarius. Ironmonger.
Feutreer, le. Uncertain, perhaps an error for "peutreer," pewterer.
Fevere, le, faber. Smith.
Fishmonger, le, piscenarius, le pessoner.
Flechere, le. Seller of arrows. Probably at this early time he sold bows also, for "le bowyer" does not occur in these deeds.
Frere, le, friar. Used as a family name.
Fuller, fullonarius.
Furbur, le, or furbeshur. A finisher of swords. It seems doubtful whether they made the blades.
Frumager, le. Fr. frumage, cheese dealer.

Gardiner, le lekman. Grower of herbs, chiefly for medicinal use. "Le lekman, gardener," occurs in later deeds. See Kirkpatrick Streets and Lanes, p. 38 n.

Gelmer, le. } Doubtful whether these words describe occupations.
Gerneys, le. }

Glover. See cyrotecarius.

Gracer, le (p. 113). This may be "grater," meaning uncertain.

Harpeur, le. Minstrel.

Hennemonger, le. Dealer in hens. See Pulliter.

Irynmonger, le. See Ferun.

Keu, le. See Le Coc.

Lanator, le wollemongere, wool merchant.

Latoner, le. Worker in latten—a mixture of brass and tin (Rye Freemen of Norwich, p. 6).

Leche, le, medicus, physician.

Letherbrokere, le, leather dealer. Perhaps letherbrekere, breaker. "Letherkervere" occurs, leather cutter or shaper.

Lindraper, le. Seller of linen cloth.

Lorymer, le, lolimer, lolomer, lorimarius. Maker of bits and bridles.

Luminur, le, lomynour. Illuminator of manuscripts.

Lymer, le, lime worker. There were lime kilns outside Conesford Gates.

Machun, le, maschun, mazoun, mason. See Cementarius.

Mareschal, le, marescallus, farrier.

Medicus. See Leche.

Mercer, le. Dealer in small goods or wares (Lib. Cust., Lond., p. 742). Originally the same as "merchant." In these rolls a "mercer" seems to be a trader; a "merchant," one who bought goods from abroad or from the great fairs, as at Boston, &c.

Merchaunt, le, merchant, mercator.

Messager, le, messenger. Perhaps a sergeant of the bailiffs.

Mouner, le. Fr. meunier, molendinarius, miller. See Weyder.

Monye, le. Fr. moyne, monk. Used as a family name.

Orfevre, le, aurifaber, goldsmith.

Palmer, le. One who had been on a crusade.

Parcheminer, le, parcamenarius, parchment dealer.

Parker, le, forester, park keeper (Wright-Wülcker Vocabularies, s.v. parkare).

Pelliparius. Skinner.

Pessinur, le, piscenarius. See Fishmonger.

Pestur, le, pistor. See Baker.

Peyntur, le, pictor, painter.

Phelipar, le. See Feliper.

Plumer, le, plumbarius, lead worker.

Porter, le. Most likely portarius—a farmer of one of the city gates.

Provost, le, prepositus. Reeve or headman of a burgh or township. The person so named on p. 85 may have been reeve of some country place (in 1365 "The Reve de Dicleburgh" was admitted as a citizen); or it may be merely a family name.

Pulliter, le, pulletarius, poulterer.

Punder maker, le, pundreys, le. Halliwell gives "punder" as equivalent to "auncel" or ansel, a kind of balance held in the hand, and afterwards prohibited on account of its inaccuracy. Balance maker.

Quilter, le. Lat. culcitra, mattress maker.

Qwyttowere, le, white-tawer. Tawer of white leather. Perhaps the same as Alutarius. See also Scouthere.

Sadler, le seler, sellarius.

Saltman, le sausur, salsarius. Seller of salt.

Sanetur, le sanur. Meaning unknown.

Sergeant, called le, serviens. Servant. The man so called on p. 25 would doubtless be a sergeant of the Bailiffs, who carried wands as a sign of their office (Leet Jurisdiction in Norwich, p. 45).

Scouthere, le. Leather dresser. Thought to be the same as Qwyttowere (Kirkpatrick Streets and Lanes of Norwich, p. 40).

Sherere, le. See Tundur.

Skirmischur le. Fencing master. On p. 11 used as a family name of a woman.

Slopere, le, slepere, slepe. Dealer in slops, smock-frocks.

Specer, le, especiarius. See Especer.

Spenser, le. From Lat. dispensator, steward.

Sponere, le. (?) Dealer in spoons.

Surgyen, le, surgeon. One who does surgical operations, as distinguished from "medicus." The use of the word on p. 19 is very early.

Sutor. See Cobelere.

Tanner, le tanur, tannator. See Barker.
Taverner, le tabernar, tabernarius. Innkeeper.
Tayllur, le, tailor. See Cissor.
Temestere, le. There was a word "temse" meaning a sieve, used in baking and brewing (Halliwell, Wright-Wülcher), a boulter or sifter. Our word "teamster," driver of a team of horses does not seem to be old.
Templer, le. One of, or connected with, the Knights Templars.
Textor. Weaver.
Tincker, le, tinker. Mender of pots.
Tinctor. See Dyer.
Tundur, le. Fr. tondeur, tonsor. Shearer of cloth.
Tyweller, le. Fr. tueller, tegularius. Tiler.

Unguentarius. Maker of ointments.

Verrer, le. Fr. verre. Glazier.

Warrenner, le. Keeper of a rabbit warren.
Weaver. See Textor.
Wayte, le. Minstrel. See Harpeur. Sometimes used for a night watchman.
Weyder, le. Woad merchant. The woad imported from Picardy was ground in mills and many of the "weyders" were millers. See Mouner.
Whelwrighte, le. Maker of wheels.
Wollemongere, le. See Lanator.
Wrighte, le. Any worker. By itself probably carpenter.
